

Psychology Students Wanted!

Psychology Discovery

Spring 2025

Psychology Discovery Overview

Psychology Discovery is a program from the Psychology Department, in collaboration with the Flandrau Science Center.

This program will invite 5th - 12th grade classes from Tucson schools to visit the University of Arizona campus. We will set up a series of stations for groups of students to explore psychological ideas, demonstrations, and activities.

We are currently recruiting students to run the activity stations (led by B.A. Psychology students) and students to conduct a data-driven program evaluation of Psychology Discovery (led by B.S. Psychological Science students).

During Spring 2025, Psychology Discovery will run on Thursdays from 9 am - 12 pm. You must be available to attend these times every Thursday in order to participate.

Students will receive either Independent Study or Directed Research credit for participating, depending on their major.

Interested? Fill out the application at this link:
https://uarizona.co1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV\_eF19jVdPHpVE18i

Applications close on Friday December 13 2024.

Got questions?

- Professor Adam Lazarewicz (anl@arizona.edu)