

DIVERSITY NEWS

Diversity Colloquium Committee of the Psychology Department

Real Talk:

Diverse Perspectives in Graduate School

To discuss our diverse experiences in graduate school, the Diversity Committee hosted a special filled-to-the-brim event in conjunction with Psi Chi to bring together graduate student speakers from four different disciplines related to psychology in April 2019.

Our Speakers

Shushan Tigranyan
Clinical Psychology
PsyD Program
Alliant University
in Sacramento, CA

Alexis Zozaya
Counseling Masters
Program
University of Arizona

Blaine Harper
Cognition & Neural
Systems PhD Program
University of Arizona

Saren Seeley
Clinical Psychology
PhD Program
University of Arizona

Empower our current and future graduate students

Highlight our diversity

Support our fellow academics

Future Events

If you would like to join the Diversity Committee email Dr. John Ruiz (johnruiz@email.arizona.edu). For more information regarding these types of events email Da'Mere Wilson (damerewilson@email.arizona.edu). In addition, keep an eye out for upcoming events next fall!

At this event, graduate students from varying disciplines spoke on Graduate School as both a rewarding experience, and a trying one. For those who are in an underrepresented group in academia, be it by gender, race, health status, etc. the fear of rejection is real. What do these experiences mean to the one living through them? How can we overcome imposter syndrome, support our fellow academics, and change the system inherently feeding our fears?

By starting here: educating ourselves, and sharing our stories.

